Art Unit: 1617

The request for continuing examination filed May 25, 2004 and the information disclosure statement filed May 15, 2004 have been received and entered into the file.

Applicant's arguments filed May 25, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive.

Claims 59-64 are presented for examination.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 59-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Metcalf et al or Karim et al.

Applicants' attention is directed to Karim et al teaching oral administration of 10 milligrams of oxandrolone anticipating claims 59-61 and 63. Metcalf et al teach oxandrolone administration of dosages between 2.5 and 30 milligrams, anticipating claims 59-64. Although these reports fail to recite a carrier, the skilled artisan would have seen steroid administration absent carriers, or excipients, as highly unlikely based on the nature of such compounds.

Applicant's attention is drawn to In re Dillon, 16 USPQ2nd 1897 at 1900 (CAFC 1990). The court sitting in banc ruled that the recitation of a new utility for an old and well known composition does not render that composition new.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Claims 59-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Metcalf et al and Karim et al.

Metcalf et al and Karim et al teach the claimed oxandrolone compound as old and well known in various pharmaceutical dosage forms. This medicament is taught as useful for those therapies conventional for anabolic steroids. Claim 59-64, and the primary references, differ as to:

- 1) the recitation of carriers or excipients with these medicaments, and
- 2) administration of exactly 20 milligrams of this medicament.

Art Unit: 1617

Attention is directed to Karim et al teaching oral administration of 10 milligrams of oxandrolone anticipating claims 59-61 and 63. Metcalf et al teach oxandrolone administration of dosages between 2.5 and 30 milligrams, anticipating claims 59-64. Although these reports fail to recite a carrier, the skilled artisan would have seen steroid administration absent carriers, or excipients, as highly unlikely based on the nature of such compounds.

Claim 63 specifically requires a solid or liquid form. Metcalf et al and Karim et al employed the claimed compound in oral and in a non-disclosed manner, not specifically reciting another formulation. The skilled artisan would have seen oral compositions being either a solid, or a liquid; and the administration of these compounds orally as residing in the skilled artisan purview.

Newly presented rejections render presented rebuttal arguments moot.

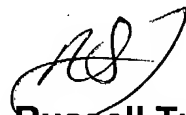

No claims are allowed.
